TWELVE FUNCTIONS I RUN

Human Resources	Information Technology
Supply Chain	International Procurement & Purchasing
Logistics & 3PL	Warehousing & Fulfilment
E-Commerce	Digital Marketing
Customer Service	Legal & Compliance
Data & MIS	Administration

HOW I RUN THEM

Every support function reports through operations. My job is to build the systems, define the accountability and coach the people who execute, so delivery is reliable, cost-efficient and accurately reported.

I work to an operating budget and a defined reporting line for every function. Department heads own their numbers, a trained pipeline sits beneath them, and the SOP and KPI framework measures all of it.

And I build it for the decade ahead, not the quarter. Capacity, headcount and systems are sized against where the business is going, so the operation scales instead of being rebuilt every time it doubles.

SYSTEMS AND CONTROLS I BUILT

Direct build control — NF Hing Plant layout, civil work, utilities and every machine on the floor run through contractors and suppliers selected, rate-negotiated and managed personally, with commissioning driven through to first output — rather than handed to a turnkey builder.

New-product gate No capital was committed to a product until demand for it was proven. Every new line was imported as a sample first and shown to our B2B clients through the sales agents; we ordered only on their feedback, never on instinct. Pre-orders were secured before the goods landed, with over half a container sold before it arrived.

Returns control A customer video-on-opening policy that made 3PL damage claims contractually enforceable, taking returns from 10% to 3%.

Exposure closed before it became cost Every supplier, customer and employee agreement drafted and negotiated personally, with HR and legal documentation rebuilt from the ground up. Nine years, and not one labour case lost — every case that arose was resolved at arbitration.

National Foods Group, Vadodara. Greenfield asafoetida manufacturing venture built from an empty plant, reporting directly to the owners.

Deployed a 10 Cr capital budget across five production lines All-new equipment, on a floor that was an empty shell when I arrived.

Ran the complete power licensing and build for a 2,000 KVA plant End to end through MGVL, from application to a fully energised floor.

Built a 200-person operation A 30-person core team plus a 170-strong contract workforce staffed in one week through agencies selected and rate-negotiated directly.
